Syllabus – Fall 2009

Course Description

Reviews the problem of crime and the societal response to criminals. Institutions discussed are those intended to discover the crime and the criminal and those designed to deal with the criminal, the victim, and society, once the criminal has been labeled. Finally, the bureaucracy of crime and its measurement as a social phenomenon are discussed.

Learning Objectives

1. Students will be able to present an overview of the criminal justice process. They will understand and be able to discuss crime control and due process as well as the distinctions between criminology and criminal justice.
2. Students will explain crime within causal theories and systems of classification.
3. Students will explain the major sources and limitations of crime data, the emerging patterns of criminal activity and the costs of crime including the research methods, theories and concepts associated with each.
4. Students will be able to discuss the sources of modern law as well as the types of laws, the key principles of the fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth and fourteenth Amendments as they relate to arrest, search, seizure, interrogation, bail and the legal impact upon police.
5. Students will be able to discuss the bureaucracy of crime, the history and structure of policing prisons the courts, probation and parole.
6. Students will be able to explain the diversity in human society and the contributions and perspectives of women and persons from various ethnic and socioeconomic groups regarding the justice system.
7. Students will demonstrate an understanding of the contributions to the development of the US justice system made by women, ethnic and religious minorities, and other minority populations seeking to redefine justice in a modern, diverse society.

Attendance

It is strongly recommended that students read the text as assigned before each exam and attend all classes in order to participate in class projects and accumulate the maximum amount of points.

Students will be called on for their responses to the assigned reading.

Class Participation

Class participation may include: attendance, direct input, daily assignments, questions on the assigned reading, current event and other quizzes, film reviews from in class films, and debate from various media resources on current Criminal Justice events.
